

Personal Protective Equipment Policy

Centurion acknowledges that the use of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) plays a small but significant role in helping to keep our employees safe from any risk that they may face during their employment.

The wearing of PPE, where required, is mandatory for all employees and management.

- PPE will be issued to employees as required.
- Where issued and available it is an employee's legislative duty to wear or use the PPE as the case may be.
- See Supervisors or Managers for PPE Issue

Failure by employees and management to wear the appropriate personal protective equipment will be seen as a failure to perform duties adequately and disciplinary action will ensue.

To assist all employees Centurion will ensure appropriate signage indicating the appropriate personal protective equipment to be worn.

It is also the policy of Centurion management to ensure all employees know how to use the PPE needed to perform their duties.

All personal protective equipment shall be stored and maintained according to manufacturer's specifications. Employees are expected to actively assist management in this area.

If PPE becomes damaged at any time, or an employee is unsatisfied with its performance, the item is to be replaced.
